Integrated Market Good for Little Man

By JACK LEFLER
AP Business Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — The small investor is likely to get a better run for his money if all stock exchanges are integrated into a single national system, securities industry sources say. "It would mean that you broker would be able to more easily find out the best price for you," a top executive of a New York Stock Exchange member firm said Thursday.

Integration—not merger—of the exchanges was recommended recently by William McChesney Martin, former chairman of the Federal Reserve Board, who made a study of the securities industry for the New York Stock Exchange. The Big Board is beginning to take steps to implement Martin's proposals. And the Securities and Exchange Commission this week said it would begin hearings Oct. 12 on the "desirability, structure and needs" of forming a national exchange system.

"The best price for a stock would come to a single market place," James W. Davant, president of the brokerage firm of Paine, Webber, Jackson & Curtis, said in discussing the probable effect on investors of the Martin proposal.

"This is an endeavor to get all buy orders and all sell orders to a single market place where you should be able to get the best execution."

Davant was a member of an advisory committee of Big Board members appointed to work with Martin.

Another Wall Street source said that under a national system, with all transactions appearing on a single ticker tape, the average investor would know more about what was going on in the market.

"He would see transactions of more stocks on the tape, and the reports would more closely reflect the market," this source said. "These more exact and broader reports would tend to minimize large price fluctuations."

He also said an integrated system could put the small investor on "a more equitable status" with institutional investors—mutual funds, pension funds, banks and insurance companies. In recent years, the institutions have become a major influence on the market.

Another advantage to the small investor, said a Wall Streeter, would be to bring uniformity to the regulatory activities of all exchanges.

Britt Takes New Position

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Former Lt. Gov. Maurice Britt will become director of the Little Rock District of the Small Business Administration today. Britt, 52, succeeds the late Christ W. Ferguson.

Utility Rates Are Frozen

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state Public Service Commission said Thursday it would allow no increase in utility rates in Arkansas as long as President Nixon's wage-price freeze remained in effect.

PSC Chairman Pat Moran said that all rates and charges of Arkansas utilities would be frozen at existing levels until the President's order had been clarified to determine if it applied to utility rates. Moran said the PSC intended to comply with the spirit of Nixon's order.

5500 Workers Pressed Into Freeze Bureau

WASHINGTON (AP) — A mini-bureaucracy totaling more than 5,500 government workers has been pressed into service to help administer President Nixon's 90-day freeze on wages, prices and rents.

It's drawn from several government agencies and reaches to the city and the farm. Its primary job is fielding questions from the public but it has been effective in rolling back some price increases.

It's a loose-knit organization of 3,000 Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation officers, 2,000 Internal Revenue Service field workers, and more than 500 Office of Emergency Preparedness employees.

In addition, the Justice Department is ready with a staff of 203 lawyers to handle any legal action. There has been no civil prosecution of violators yet, although at least one suit challenge legality of the freeze.

All this is being overseen by the newly created Cost of Living Council, with a staff of 30 policymakers and public-relations officials and a board of top government economic officials.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness doubled its staff to handle enforcement of the program. Most of the new OEP workers are on loan from other federal agencies.

The agricultural workers are answering questions from rural residents about the freeze but are doing nothing beyond issuing advice, an Agriculture Department spokesman said. These workers must handle their regular duties as well.

The same is true of the 2,000 IRS workers in the 360 field offices throughout the country.

But IRS workers are receiving, analyzing and investigating complaints of violations of the freeze, in addition to answering questions. In some cases, said a spokesman, the IRS has resolved complaints through persuasion.

At the Justice Department, eight attorneys in the Civil Division serve as policymakers on any possible legal action. But, the department said the full resources of the division would be available to handle any legal action.

Family Joins on March for Equality

By LYNN SHERR
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — As the ranks of feminists came up Fifth Avenue, tucked amid the marchers were Eleanor Tilson, a divorced career woman, her mother and two teen-aged sons. They had come out on a warm summer evening to support the 1971 Women's March for Equality.

Each member of the family agreed that women need to be liberated. And they had their own personal views about why. "I didn't used to be very good about wanting women to move ahead," said Mrs. Tilson, 44, an effusive brunette who administers $12 million in pension and medical funds for the United Department Storeworkers Union. "I was afraid to be called 'that pushy woman.'"

"But lately," she added, "we've had more discussion in our union about women's lib. I've been looking around and seeing the needs in our organization. Eighty per cent of our members are women. And most of the top leaders are men. I think it should be possible for women to move into these areas."

For her mother, Rose Frank, a 73-year-old sprightly veteran of the hunger and rent strikes of the 1930s, the 6,000 marchers Thursday brought back memories.

"It looks like old times," she said. "I only regret I'm not young again to participate more actively in this movement."

A former sewing machine operator and trade union activist, Mrs. Frank admitted she had left some supper at home for her husband before coming out to march.

Mrs. Tilson got married still in college and quit to help put her husband through school. Ten years later the couple was divorced—"a civilized divorce," Mrs. Tilson said.

So Mrs. Tilson went back to work and raised her family. "I identify so strongly with women's lib here. There is such a desperate need for day care centers. I don't know how I did it."

Mrs. Frank explained how: "I was the day care center," she said.

And then there were Daniel, 14, and Andrew, 16, who call Mrs. Frank "the hippest grandmother of them all."

"I have to recognize that girls are my equals," said Danny, a husky 10th grader with shoulder-length hair who learned to darn socks and stitch patches in his sewing class last year.

Andy said the main point of the march was "to get women some political power."

"And women's liberation will lead to the liberation of both sexes. Now, society defines our roles so rigidly," Andy explained.

New Effort to Solve Camden Case

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — A special investigator employed by the Camden Police Department and the Ouachita County sheriff's office said Friday that authorities are renewing their efforts to solve the case of the disappearance of a noted woman lawyer from her Camden home 14 years ago.

A Little Rock television station quoted Andy McKay, the investigator, as saying additional information concerning the case had been received recently.

Mrs. Maude Crawford, who was with the law firm of Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., disappeared March 2, 1957. She was 60 at the time.

McKay said the new information was still being checked, but that the investigation had begun along the lines of a homicide probe. Some of the information indicates that there are "people who claim to be" witnesses to a homicide, McKay said. He did not elaborate.

Mrs. Crawford's husband, Clyde, discovered his wife's absence when he returned home from a movie. A television set was on in the house and legal documents she used were lying on the floor. Her purse, which contained $200, also was there.

The case was investigated by city and county authorities, the State Police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation, but authorities said no substantial developments took place in their probes.

One theory offered in 1957 for her disappearance was that she was a victim of organized crime elements upset with McClellan's work through the Senate racket committee, of which he is chairman.

U.S. Has Hard Stance on Air-Routes

By LEWIS GULICK
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — U.S. diplomats have adopted a hard-nosed stance on international air-route deals, reflecting President Nixon's tough new economic policy but troubling some of America's longtime friends abroad.

Last week the United States, for the first time since World War II, told a foreign country—Israel—that its airline will lose its lucrative New York stop unless U.S. carriers get a better break in Ireland.

Now U.S. negotiators are bargaining rigorously with Australians, seeking to boost American air traffic to that country. Meanwhile, Washington has piggybacked a bid by Australia's air carrier, Qantas, to step up its service to the United States.

Marriage Issue to Be Decided

FORT SMITH, Ark. (AP) — U.S. District Judge Paul X. Williams issued a temporary order Thursday prohibiting the Siloam Springs School Board from barring married students from extracurricular activities at Siloam Springs High School.

The board ruled on July 20 that married students could attend classes, but could not participate in such activities as athletics or the Student Council.

Roy Barnett and Tommy Thompson of Siloam Springs filed suit in U.S. District Court alleging the board had denied the rights of the pupils and that the board policy was in violation of the Arkansas Administrative Procedures Act.

The two men filed the suit on behalf of their sons, Mark Barnett and Gregory Thompson, who are both married and have in the past participated in athletics.

Barnett also is president of the Student Council.

Chinese in Romania Extend Stay

By JOHN VINOCUR
Associated Press Writer

BUCHAREST (AP) — A military delegation from Communist China prolonged its stay in Romania today, and its presence seemed to dispel reports of Soviet invasion threats.

Western analysts regarded the presence of the delegation led by Li Teh-sheng, chief political commissar of the Chinese army, as a sign that the Romanians were not under grave pressure from the Soviet Union despite a flurry of warnings in the past fortnight against Romania's friendliness toward Peking.

The analysts had been waiting to see if Li would stop in Romania after a visit last week to Albania, Peking's only ally in Europe. If the threat of Soviet intervention had been serious, the diplomats reasoned, the Romanians would have avoided any kind of gesture—Li's presence, for example—that the Russians could have taken as a provocation.

More than 800 miles of border with the Soviet Union, weigh more heavily on Romanian thinking than could any promise of aid from Communist China, a continent away. At the present time, there are no indications of any military assistance from Peking to Bucharest. The subject of Li's conversations in Bucharest was not known.

A Tel Aviv newspaper reported Monday that the Romanian army and the state militia had been placed on an alert "against any Soviet attempt to invade Romania or interfere in its internal affairs." But Bucharest's streets were virtually empty until Tuesday night as many of the capital's people spent a four-day national holiday at the Black Sea or in the mountains.

The bridge over the Danube at Giurgiu, about 46 miles from the Soviet border, would be a major military objective for Soviet invaders because it is on the main road between Bucharest and Constanta, Romania's only Black Sea port. But on Tuesday there was only the usual one soldier guarding the bridge. And though a bayonet was fixed to his Russian rifle, his head slumped in boredom and fatigue.

Informed sources totally discounted the reports of an alert. Arguments against the likelihood of Soviet military action appear to outweigh those in favor of it.

Back to One Room School

HENRYETTA, Okla. (AP) — Elementary school children in this eastern Oklahoma town will start class next week at a citywide, one-room school.

Principal Raymond Sewell thinks he has licked the one big problem that cropped up last spring during a brief test run of the new concept. Sewell calls the answer "comparative art."

During the test period, some of the first-graders got on the wrong buses. At the end of the day, Sewell chased throughout this city of 7,000 in his personal car, retrieving lost youngsters.

This year each school bus will be decorated with a giant picture of such cartoon favorites as Pinocchio, Mickey Mouse, Junie B. and Pluto.

And rubber-stamped on each little wrist will be a corresponding cartoon figure.

Jap Goods in the U.S. to Cost More

NEW YORK (AP) — A floating yen means that Japanese goods sold in the United States will cost more and that even cotton textiles, not covered by the original surcharge, will give American industry less competition.

The yen had been fixed at 360 to the dollar. That meant that every dollar brought in from the sale of, say, a camera in the United States gave the manufacturer 360 yen to help pay his workers. Now the dollar rate is not fixed—if it falls to 310 yen, the Japanese factory owner will get only 310 yen for his camera dollar. So to get enough money to pay his costs and provide his profit, he may have to raise his prices.

This in turn, means it would be easier for American goods to sell in Japan.

Cotton textiles are covered by a quota, under an agreement between Japan and the United States. Quota goods were not covered by the 10 per cent import surcharge imposed by President Nixon to help defend the dollar. However, a lower rate for the dollar in terms of yen will mean fewer yen to pay Japanese textile workers. Therefore prices may have to go up on what goods are sent to America.

A change in the value of the yen was described by one American economist as "a key part" of president Nixon's dollar defense plans. Japan resisted but the flood of dollars into Japan—$4 billion in two weeks—was too much.

East Coast Hit by Storm Doria

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Tropical storm Doria, churning northward with winds of near-hurricane force, moved today into the New York-New Jersey area, already hard hit by flooding from heavy rain Friday.

Little damage was reported Friday as the storm moved inland over North Carolina, then cut through Virginia and Maryland.

The storm was expected to maintain winds of nearly 70 miles per hour—five miles below hurricane force—as it moved northward about 30 m.p.h.

The National Weather Service said the storm was expected to turn northeastward toward Connecticut after reaching the New York area.

The weather service lifted early today a hurricane watch that had been in effect for coastal regions from Manassquan, N.J., to Cape Ann, Mass., including New York, Long Island and the south coast of Connecticut.

Doria slammed into the Outer Banks of North Carolina on Friday and then hit the mainland south of Morehead City, N.C. The storm whipped across eastern North Carolina for several hours, then cut across eastern Virginia and the Chesapeake Bay before it hit Maryland.

Only minor damage to businesses and homes was reported in North Carolina and Virginia. Tornado-like winds that spun off the main storm were reported in Onslow County, N.C., and Chesapeake, Va. In Onslow County several mobile homes were reported damaged and in Chesapeake, Va., the winds tipped trees and damaged about 30 homes.

Torrential rains from storms that weather experts said were influenced but not caused by Doria hit a long stretch of the Atlantic coast earlier Friday caused flooding in northern New Jersey and New York City.

The National Hurricane Center in Miami, Fla., warned that more flash flooding may occur in metropolitan areas where drainage is poor. Rainfall totals from the storm are expected to range from six to eight inches in some locations, the center said.

At least 4½ inches of rain fell on New York City Friday, swamping rail, subway, bus and automobile traffic. Massive delays involving thousands of commuters were caused by flooding from the heavy rain.

Sick Guests Get Attention at White House

By ANN BLACKMAN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Should a guest at the White House suddenly feel faint, someone will quickly step to his side and help him to a chair.

Should an unescorted woman be left looking like a wallflower, someone will swirl her around the dance floor.

Should a guest get a bit too much into the spirit of things at a White House function, you can bet that someone will get him a cab, and see that he gets into it.

These are among official duties which fall to the White House social aides, 36 military officers, all young and single, stationed in the Washington area.

The detail is extra duty, but there's no shortage of candidates, even though the job carries no pay, and entails additional expenses.

Officials say the U.S. attitude began stiffening about a year ago when it became apparent that U.S. international airlines were piling up large financial losses. Nixon's new economic policy announcement Aug. 15 poured hardening cement into the U.S. negotiating posture.

CAVALRY at LARAMIE

At the cry of "Charge!" blades flash forward into battle position and horses' hooves pound the ground in a gallop. Then the blue-clad troopers pull up just short of the crowd amid loud applause for their performance. About all that is missing from the tableau of early Americana is the echo of the bugle across the parade ground at old Fort Laramie National Historic Site, Wyoming.

The horsemen belong to the Mounted Color Guard and Drill Team attached to the 12th Cavalry at Fort Carson, Colo. The unit is one of the few horse units now maintained by the U.S. Army—and the only one whose lineage, traditions, uniforms and equipment can be traced back to the original horse cavalry units. The troopers came to Fort Laramie to take part in review ceremonies on the 100th anniversary of the 115th Wyoming National Guard. This was one of many military drill performances carried out in the West by the 21-man volunteer team.

hear it—it's a little like trying to catch a black cat in a dark basement. You're haggling in the dark.

Charlie Groves sold cars for many years—used cars, new cars, fleets of cars. He had his own dealership. Now he's turned writer and produced a paperback for car buyers that tells all: what a car costs a dealer, how much profit he has to make, what figures are going through the salesman's head when you're talking price.

There is no end of books and articles on how to beat car dealers down on price. Many of them are highly unrealistic. Buying a new car has actually become a highly complicated game of mental, or psychological, chess. For example:

You walk into a dealer's showroom, point at a car, and ask "How much?" The game begins. The salesman knows that, whatever answer you get, you're going to head for another dealer's to get his price. And nine out of 10 people who walk out never come back—because that next dealer is a highly skillful player of the chess game.

DR. LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Dear Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D. Would you please explain the symptoms of diabetes and the normal blood sugar?

Dear Reader—I'll use the classic form of diabetes to make matters simpler. First let me say that a lot of diabetics do not have symptoms. There are at least as many people with diabetes with no symptoms as there are with symptoms.

In the classic form there is not enough insulin manufactured by small glands located in the pancreas. Insulin is a hormone and is necessary to metabolize the glucose sugar in the blood. All foods, fats, proteins and carbohydrates are eventually converted to glucose before they are burned into carbon dioxide and water to provide energy for the body.

Without enough insulin to burn the glucose, more and more of it accumulates in the bloodstream, elevating the blood sugar. This is why properly done blood sugar tests can be used to diagnose diabetes. Whenever any normal person eats carbohydrates, particularly pure sugar, the blood sugar level rises, but within limited amounts and it soon falls to lower levels because of the action of insulin. In the diabetic the level of blood sugar rises higher and stays up longer than in normal people.

When the blood sugar gets too high a lot of sugar is spilled out in the urine. Hence urine tests for sugar content are used as a way to detect diabetic suspects.

In diabetes, since the blood sugar level is high, as the disease progresses more and more is lost in the urine. This means less of all the food the diabetic eats can be converted to glucose and burned for energy. This in turn leads to loss of energy (fatigue) and loss of weight. While an early diabetic may be overweight, as the disease progresses and lots of the food value is lost as sugar in the urine, weight loss while eating a lot of food is common.

The large amount of sugar spilled in the urine takes with it a lot of water. This causes another symptom, passing lots of urine, and usually frequently. This may also occur at night if lots of urine is passed. The large volume of urine passed each day must be replaced by drinking more water, hence another symptom, thirst and drinking lots of water.

As the disease progresses with time, the kidneys may be damaged. The circulation may also be damaged and there are complications like increased likelihood of having boils and in women problems of inflammation of the vagina with yeast or fungus infections.

The loss of sugar in the urine in large amounts then creates a typical picture of eating a lot in the face of weight loss, fatigue, passing lots of urine, thirst and drinking lots of water. If permanent damage from complications has not occurred, giving insulin corrects most symptoms.

Wanted: 2 Husbands for Doris Day

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA)—Doris Day plays Doris Martin on her CBS show. And both Doris Day and Doris Martin are looking for a fella.

It isn't a desperate search in either case. Both Dorises are surviving admirably on their own. The on-screen Doris has a new leading man—John Dehner—this season and, in episodes already filmed, she's had such male co-stars as Cesare Danova and Bob Crane.

"But," says Doris, "if we can find the right guy, there's nothing to stop us from having a real romance and eventually Doris Martin could get married."

She thinks that would open up the show to a whole new assortment of plot twists, and might prove advantageous. But it's just something that is a maybe, not a for-sure.

And that brings us to Doris Day, at 47 still a fine figure of a woman. Her husband, Marty Melcher, died three years ago. They had been married for 17 years.

She says she's learned that it's true what they say about time healing all wounds. She didn't think it could happen, but it has. Now she isn't looking back any more, or at least not as often and not as hungrily. She's looking ahead again.

"My motto," she says, "is that the best is yet to come."

So far, she isn't dating very much, although she says her mother is after her to go out more. She says she's happy with the way things are, and the implication is that she realizes it'll

PERSONAL FINANCE

September, traditionally, is the time for buying "like new" used cars. It's the end of the model year, and dealers slash prices dramatically (so they say) to clear the floors of demonstrators, "executive cars" and low, low-mileage leftovers.

Stay away from those September bargains. That's the advice of a man who's sold thousands of them. Charlie Groves was in the business for many years. He's sold used cars, new cars, held a dealership. Now he's written a book that is going to make some car salesmen cry a little—or maybe a lot.

"How to Buy Cars at Top Discount," by C. E. Groves (ARC Books; paperback, $1.65), provides you with the kind of behind-the-scenes expose that Dorothy got when she walked in on the Wizard of Oz, busily at work on his prestidigitations. It covers both the new car and the used car scenes.

Did you know, for example, that demonstrators are frequently sold as new cars? Legally, they can be—though Groves says they're driven an average of 18,000 miles a year. But they've never had an owner, never been registered; technically, they're "new."

Demonstrators, Groves affirms, "are almost never a good deal." You can generally buy the same end-of-the-model-year car, really new, for about the same price.

Why, otherwise, stay away from September sales? Simply because everyone believes it's bargain month. "For several years," says Groves, "the end of the model year has brought out buyers—either self-deluded or misled—in such droves that a seller's market is created. Prices of cars at the end of the year actually are apt to go up, because of the number of bargain-hunters."

Groves tells you not only when to buy, but where you're likely to find the best deals. A Ford dealer, for example, is happy to have a lot full of good used Fords, but a Chrysler dealer favors his own brands, and is apt to make you a price on a Ford, to get it off his lot.

Then there's the psychological warfare. The used car salesman uses certain standard techniques. "Bear in mind," says Groves, "that the name of the car-selling game is commitment."

The first move of the salesman who senses that you're a serious prospect is to "get a commitment as to what the buyer would be willing to pay, right now, and then he works up from there. If a salesman can get a commitment, he is halfway to closing a deal. You're instructed on how to hold your own, or better, in this verbal fencing.

Fashion and Beauty

LOOKING THIN

Can't stick to that diet? Then wear clothes that make you look thinner. Take advantage of optical illusions in creating a slimmer line. Try A-line dresses, side slits, add trimming along long side seams and long sleeves. Always stay with the vertical lines. Styles with up and down lines always have a thinning effect.

FRECKLE FACE?

If the summer sun has left your face with a field of freckles, follow the advice of all those old wives. Rub fresh lemons over the freckled area. It's still one of the most effective methods of lightening freckles.

EYEBROWING

Here are some hints for good eyebrow grooming. Cleanse area thoroughly before plucking. Brush the brow along its natural line. Pluck strays which are not in the natural line. Never pluck from above the brow, only below. Then fill in the sparse areas with an eyebrow brush, making sure that the color is as close to your own as possible.

BEAUTY MASK

To help fight the effects of pollution on the face, try using a beauty mask. Done nightly this will help tighten pores and prevent clogging which will cause black heads.

SHIRTDRESS

The traditional shirtdress in rayon or polyester can be worn on any number of occasions. Dress it up or play it down. These dresses can be worn over pants or, if you like, put a skirt on over it.

BLACK AND GOLD

Make a gold necklace to go with that basic black dress. Take about  $\frac{3}{4}$  yard of gold lace. A variety of designs are available at fabric stores. Choose one that is simple and the width that you desire. Then all you do is gather the lace on a gold cord and you have a unique and elegant necklace.

ANIMAL PINS

Animal pins in wild colors are being seen all over the place. They're especially good looking with knickers, little girl outfits, T-shirts and hot pants.

PEASANT LOOK

If you go for the peasant look—go all the way. Never wear elaborate hairdos with a peasant outfit. Concentrate on the whole look. That means giving special attention to shoes, bags and

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottel

MEEK MINKS FROM "CHICKEN" CHICKEN

Dear Helen: Someone asked, "Do caponized chickens make men impotent?" Eating them, I mean.

I don't know about humans, but some 20 years ago I read that mink farmers sued the government because agricultural advisors told them to feed their little animals ground-up chicken heads. Seems the fowls had been caponized chemically, with hormones, and the residue was enough to turn male minks non-productive. What's the story?—WILBUR

Dear Will: Daughter Sue says, "Maybe the minks were just 'chicken.'"

But Mama Helen got the scoop from our State Department of Agriculture. It's true; back in the early days of harmonizing, a diet of "chicken" chicken, turned minks meek: hormone pellets implanted in "rooster" heads were still potent enough (at eating time to render small male animals if not totally impotent at least reluctant.

Because farmers protested, chemical caponizing in fowl has largely been replaced by mechanical methods.

Not to worry male human chicken eaters: your crow won't become a hackle.—H.

Here's a classic example of too much too late. In our state, sex education can only be taught if parents sign a special form, and a number won't give permission. Even then, information on contraceptives and venereal diseases is sketchy, all through high school.

But our same liberal state was one of the first to permit treatment of V.D. without notifying parents, and recently it has "allowed" abortions to minors, sans parental knowledge.

Remedy, then, is more available than prevention. And, because the State often foots the bill of Welfare funds, it is more expensive tax-wise, plus bringing nursery all around.

My suggestion is that sex education in schools be liberalized to include contraceptive information (and where to go for prescriptions if the girl is determined). Also, jewelry to fit in with the rest of the down-home look.

SCRAP SKIRT

Make a whole collection of patchwork skirts for the fall, ranging from casual daytime wear to evening attire. Take out the old scrap bag, choose the materials that blend well together and have the brightest colors. Then use any gathered skirt pattern with the TV series. It's too tough to do both, and to do justice to both.

"My work keeps me so busy," she says, "that I just don't have the time to build a relationship while I'm working. TV, for a woman, is a fine career—providing she's either single or an old married lady. But it takes so much time that you can't be a new bride and a TV star at the same time."

So, contented with her lot, she does her work, goes home, plays with her dogs, goes for swims in her pool, works in her garden, redecorates her house. It isn't quite the same as having a man, but it keeps her busy.

"It took me a long time to adjust to Marty's death," she says. "Religion didn't help, but metaphysics did. Mary Baker Eddy said, 'Let go, and let God,' and that's helped me. I pray a lot—I don't belong to a church any more, but I pray a lot."

She believes that there is more to existence than the life we lead on earth, and that's helped, too.

"I believe," she says, "in the eternity of life. This is just something we're passing through, not the totality of existence."

But there's still a long way to go in this life. Still beautiful and healthy, it's only normal for Doris Day to think about another marriage. She is full of plans for the future—she wants a house in the mountains and one at Palm Springs—and a husband would fit into those plans neatly.

There's no rush—for either Doris. But it will probably happen—to both.

The student went up with dummy's ace of hearts, led a spade to his ace and a second spade back to dummy's king. Then he led dummy's four of hearts. East, who had played the deuce of hearts at his first turn, produced the five spot.

The student thought a while and threw away his deuce of diamonds. West won the trick and did the best he could by leading a diamond, but the student won with his king; led a diamond to the ace; ruffed a diamond high, entered dummy with a trump and discarded a club on the 13th diamond. He still had to lose two clubs, but he had made his game.

He turned to the Professor and said, "That was a loser on loser play to keep East out of the lead, wasn't it?"

"You are learning," replied the Professor. "You chucked the hand at trick one but recovered nicely when East forgot to play his nine of hearts at trick four. Now see if you can figure out the correct play."

One hour later, the student worked it out. He should have led West hold the first trick. We might call this the loser trade play because it trades a heart loser for a diamond loser. Both the loser on loser play and this loser trade play are forms of the avoidance play which is designed to keep the dangerous hand from gaining the lead.

Colombo Shooting Has a Message

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Leslie Waller is the author of "The Family," the best-seller about the "Syndicate," and has been a close observer of organized crime for 15 years.)

By LESLIE WALLER

NEW YORK — (NEA) — The shots fired at New York's Columbus Circle this summer may yet be heard around the world.

The melodramatic gun-down of reputed mob boss Joe Colombo before more than 50,000 onlookers has escalated the entire question of organized crime from something only the police worry about to a problem rooted deeply in the lives of otherwise law-abiding Americans.

What's more, the assassination attempt seems to be backfiring against the gangland interests that paid for it.

While police attribute the hiring of the gunman to rather vague "rival mobsters," suspicion is settling specifically on such leaders as dignified, elderly Carlo Gambino, popularly supposed to have served as the model for the title character in "The Godfather."

Considered a capodone of the old school, passionately devoted to privacy and silence, Gambino is supposed to be the opposite of volatile, limelight-loving Colombo, who singlehandedly promoted to nationwide power the Italian-American Civil Rights League whose rally he was to address when bullets chopped him down.

Most authorities agree that the timing of the shooting was staged in the highest operative tradition under the shadow of Christopher Columbus' statue to serve as a clear warning that in our society homage must still be paid to organized crime and its overlords.

It was Colombo's successful bid for power through publicity, observers theorize, that finally undid him. The honest eagerness of the Italian-American community, largely law-abiding and patriotic, to support the league's drive for recognition is supposed to have set the stage for Colombo's public punishment.

Those who are intimately familiar with this community point out that the league's primary goal was to declare its independence from the stereotyped image of Italian-American neighborhoods as mob enclaves in which everyone was in thrall to racket bosses.

In promoting this, Colombo's private motives may have been cynically self-seeking, authorities agree, but most league members and supporters took the whole thing in good faith and believed in this bid for freedom from the past.

Thus the public attempt at an execution. To deliver a message that the overlords of crime are still to be obeyed. This message was read loud and clear. The league's recruiting drive has been crippled and vast numbers of its more than 50,000 members have been driven into total inactivity.

At the same time that a disciplinary measure was taken, a strong note of racial and ethnic tumult was sounded by the assassination attempt, with the result that the nation may be in for another of those gangland upheavals such as the mass slayings of more than 40 old-style leaders in the early 1930s.

In those days, when the Mafia controlled organized crime, a severe disciplinary code limited mobsters to their own Sicilian-centered families. To affiliate with mobs of other ethnic origins, young Mafiosi like Lucky Luciano took the radical step of eliminating their elders.

Today, crime experts believe, the predominantly white leaders of organized crime relate to black and Puerto Rican criminals as boss to worker, a relationship the latter seek to overthrow. Especially in drugs and "numbers" gambling, there are strong bids for financial independence from white overlords.

Police have pointed out that such younger reputed mob figures as Joey Gallo have been lobbying within the mob's councils for equal partnership with nonwhite criminals. The vigorous ethnocentric thrust of Colombo's Italian-American League was clearly a stumbling block to this new business alignment.

And business is what it's all about.

It's estimated that the illegal operations of organized crime — mainly gambling, drugs, loan-sharking and the like — make it perhaps the fourth largest business conglomerate in the land. But this ranking, like so much of what is "known" about the mob, is an illusion.

Legitimate businesses with high operational costs may generate greater revenue than the crime syndicate, but lower profits. The business overhead of organized crime is measly by comparison, a few millions doled out to corrupt political and law-enforcement figures.

Thus, if measured by profits, the nationwide web of the mob ranks far and away as the largest business in the country.

Such success, observers agree, could never be achieved unless the goods and services of organized crime filled the needs of a broad segment of the public.

Therefore, it's not improbable that the list of mob customers includes your next-door neighbor or the man who works across from you. It includes the blue-collar worker who bets the factory football pool and the top executive who jets to the Bahamas or Las Vegas for his gambling.

The list ranges from the merchant who retails hijacked goods to his customers who buy at suspiciously low prices. It encompasses poor people who seek a city-payroll job and rich folk who want a speeding violation removed from their driver's license, laborers who pay dues to mob union locals and employers who pay off the mob to fix labor contracts.

Organized crime reaches deep into our society to touch even government employees like postal clerks who are reported to remove credit cards from the mail and sell them for $100 each to the mob. The taint of criminal control apparently chokes most of the nation's airports, where freight storage, handling and transport are managed through union locals and truckers who owe allegiance to the mob.

The list of legitimate businesses controlled in some part, small or large, by organized crime ranges as far afield as the garment industry, music and entertainment, restaurants and night spots, food processing and retailing, coin-operated vending machines, big-city real estate, short-haul and over-the-road motor freight, commercial construction, financing of various kinds, hotel and resort management, banking, private housing, road building and waste disposal.

Obviously, with so many legal, quasi-legal and illicit operations under its control, organized crime is one of the largest employers in the United States.

Experts estimate that between 7 and 10 per cent of the adult labor force works for the mob, often without knowing it. And, while it's impossible to know how many Americans consume the goods and services of these enterprises, a conservative guess would be 15 per cent of the population.

Whatever happens, most authorities believe the hold of organized crime on our society will not appreciably weaken. Despite well-financed "strike force" attacks by local and federal authorities, it apparently takes more than that to dislodge such a popular purveyor of goods and services as your friendly neighborhood mobster.

That can only happen, it seems, when the customers themselves have had enough.

Phyllis is a Greek name meaning "green bough."

Killebrew's Homers Lead Twins to Win

By BERT ROSENTHAL, Associated Press Sports Writer

Two home runs in a game can quickly change a batter's opinion of a park. It did to Harmon Killebrew Friday night. The Killer, the 10th leading home run hitter in baseball history, had said recently: "I always had trouble seeing in that park," referring to Cleveland's Municipal Stadium, where he had hit only 16 of his 503 career homers. "And the Indians always had good pitching through the years."

Friday, Killebrew apparently had no trouble seeing the ball—and no trouble with the Indians' pitching. He slammed his 504th and 505th homers and drove in five runs, leading the Twins to an 8-4 victory.

Meanwhile, in the American League, Detroit downed Chicago 4-2; Kansas City blanked New York 4-0; Oakland beat Washington 6-2; California edged Boston 1-0 and the Milwaukee at Baltimore two-night doubleheader was rained out.

In the National League, Chicago topped Atlanta 3-0; Cincinnati overcame St. Louis 8-7; Pittsburgh beat Houston 7-3; and three games were rained out—Los Angeles at New York, San Francisco at Philadelphia, and San Diego at Montreal.

Killebrew's homers were only his 17th and 18th of the season, his second lowest output since he became a regular with the old Washington Senators in 1959. His sprained toe suffered two months ago has slowed his production.

His first homer went deep into the left field stands in the fifth inning and scored Rod Carew, who had walked with two out, and Tony Oliva, who had singled. It was hit off loser Steve Dunning, 8-12, and gave the Twins a 4-3 lead.

Killebrew's second homer sailed over the left center field fence in the seventh and drove in Carew, who had opened the inning with a single, knocking out Dunning. Reliever Mike Paul was the victim of the homer.

Cleveland had taken a 3-0 lead in the first inning off Bert Blyleven, 11-15, on singles by Vada Pinson and Ted Uhlaender, a double by Roy Foster and a two-run single by Chris Chambliss. Chambliss went to second on a passed ball and tried to score on John Lowenstein's single to left. But he was thrown out by Cesar Tovar's peg to Phil Roof.

Minnesota Manager Bill Rigney said Tovar's throw probably saved Blyleven from being taken out of the game. Blyleven said he felt tired in the first inning. "But I started to get stronger after Killebrew hit his first homer."

WESTBURY, N.Y. (AP) — Une de Mai of France and Fresh Yankee of Canada, the world's two leading harness racing millionaires, face each other again tonight in the Roquepine Trot at Roosevelt Raceway.

The Roquepine is a sequel to last week's Roosevelt International which Une de Mai won by a nose over Fresh Yankee.

KIAMESHA, LAKE, N.Y. (AP) — Unless rain again interferes, the second round of the $60,000 Concord Open Golf Tournament will be played today. A downpour forced postponement of the round Friday and set up a 36-hole windup Sunday.

Cub Take Braves 3-1 Friday

By KEN RAPPOPORT

Associated Press Writer

The Chicago Cubs, who have been fighting themselves for a while, pulled no punches against the Atlanta Braves and had them seeing stars.

One of the stars the Braves has was Billy Williams and another was Milt Pappas.

Williams drove in all three runs and Pappas pitched a five-hitter as the discordant Cubs decked the Braves 3-0 Friday and got back on the right track for a pennant run.

It was a nice change of pace for Chicago, which had lost four of five before Friday during a siege of open dissension against Manager Leo Durocher.

Before their bounce-back against the Braves, owner Phil Wrigley had admonished his players to forget about friction with the 65-year-old Durocher, whom some had criticized as inept.

While the Cubs were traversing a bridge over troubled waters, storms lashed the East and wiped out three National League games—Los Angeles at New York, San Francisco at Philadelphia and San Diego at Montreal.

In the only other NL games played, the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped the Houston Astros 7-3 and the Cincinnati Reds trimmed the St. Louis Cardinals 8-7.

Minnesota turned back Cleveland 8-4; Kansas City defeated New York 4-0; Detroit beat Chicago 4-2; California nipped Boston 1-0 and Oakland whipped Washington 6-2 in the American League games. Rain
